Oasis Center Expands Outpatient Program and Dual Diagnosis Care at Manhattan Addiction Facility

September 11, 2026

NEW YORK, NY - September 11, 2026 -

Oasis Center, a private addiction treatment facility based in Manhattan, has expanded access to its flexible outpatient programs and integrated mental health services to meet rising demand for accessible recovery care in New York City. The expansion allows more individuals to receive structured treatment while continuing to work or care for their families.

Oasis Addiction Center in New York operates a 24-hour confidential helpline and provides a full continuum of care that ranges from medically supervised detox through residential rehab and step-down outpatient services. With the latest expansion, the center has increased capacity within its intensive outpatient track, which offers nine or more hours of therapy each week along with evening scheduling options for patients who cannot attend daytime sessions.

Oasis Center has earned consistent five-star feedback from individuals and families who have completed its programs, and recent reviews reflect satisfaction with the clinical team and the accessibility of care.

Prospective patients can view firsthand accounts through the center's published five-star reviews.

A central component of the center's model is the Oasis addiction center dual diagnosis treatment approach, which addresses substance use disorders alongside co-occurring mental health conditions such as anxiety, depression, and trauma-related disorders. Clinical staff coordinates care so that both concerns are treated together rather than in isolation, a method widely recognized in behavioral health for reducing the risk of relapse.

"The decision to expand the outpatient program reflects what patients and families across the city have been asking for," said a spokesperson for Oasis Center. "Many people need treatment that fits around their responsibilities, and this expansion makes structured, evidence-based care available to more individuals who might otherwise delay seeking help."

The center's services include medical detox for alcohol, opioids, benzodiazepines, and stimulants, residential inpatient rehab, partial hospitalization, intensive outpatient and standard outpatient programs, medication-assisted treatment, and dual diagnosis care. The medication-assisted treatment program combines FDA-approved medications with counseling to help patients manage cravings and withdrawal symptoms during recovery.

"Every person who reaches out is met with respect and a clear path forward," the spokesperson added. "The clinical team remains available around the clock, and assessments are offered at no cost so that individuals can understand their options before committing to a program."

Oasis Center provides medically supervised withdrawal management under the care of licensed professionals, structured residential treatment with round-the-clock clinical support, and outpatient tracks designed for individuals with a stable support system at home. The center accepts most major commercial insurance plans and offers free confidential assessments, including same-day evaluations for those in immediate need.

Oasis Center is a private addiction treatment facility located in Manhattan, New York City. The center delivers compassionate, evidence-based addiction care through a full continuum of services, including detox, inpatient rehab, outpatient programs, medication-assisted treatment, and dual diagnosis care for co-occurring mental health conditions. Its clinical team operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and treats every individual who seeks help with dignity and respect.
