Kelco Cabinets Reports Kitchen Renovation Pricing Trends Range from $20,000 to $75,000 in Springfield Missouri Market

SPRINGFIELD, MO - July 29, 2026 -
Kelco Cabinets, a custom cabinet builder serving southwest Missouri, has released data showing that kitchen remodeling costs in the Springfield area typically range from $20,000 to $75,000 or more, with cabinetry representing the single largest expense category for most homeowners undertaking these projects.

The company's analysis of recent projects reveals three distinct pricing tiers that have emerged in the local market. Basic kitchen updates, ranging from $20,000 to $35,000, typically involve cabinet refacing or replacement with stock options, standard countertops, and minimal layout changes. Mid-range remodels, falling between $35,000 and $60,000, generally include semi-custom cabinetry, upgraded countertops, and moderate layout modifications. High-end renovations exceeding $60,000 often feature custom cabinetry, premium materials throughout, and significant structural changes.

Cabinetry choices drive much of the cost variation within these ranges, according to the company's findings.

While countertops might vary by a few thousand dollars between basic and premium options, cabinet selections can swing project costs by tens of thousands. The difference stems from construction methods, material quality, and customization levels. Stock cabinets use standardized dimensions and basic materials, while custom options involve precise measurements, higher-grade wood species, and specialized hardware systems.

"What surprises many homeowners is that cabinets alone can account for 35 to 40 percent of their total remodel budget," said Preston Kelsch, owner of Kelco Cabinets. "They often come in focused on countertop materials or appliances, not realizing that the cabinet decision will have the biggest impact on both their budget and the final outcome. Cost transparency early in the planning process helps families make informed decisions about where to allocate their resources."

The kitchen remodeling pricing guide developed by the company identifies several factors beyond cabinetry that influence total project costs. Layout changes requiring plumbing or electrical work can add $5,000 to $15,000 to a project. The size of the kitchen space naturally affects material quantities and labor hours. Material selections for flooring, backsplashes, and countertops create additional cost variables, though none match the budget impact of cabinet choices.

Labor costs in the Springfield market have remained relatively stable, the company reports, though skilled trades availability can affect project timelines. The data shows that most complete kitchen remodels in the area require eight to twelve weeks from demolition to completion, with custom cabinet orders typically requiring the longest lead times.

Hidden costs frequently catch homeowners unprepared, particularly expenses related to bringing older homes up to current building codes. Electrical panel upgrades, plumbing modifications, and structural reinforcements for heavier countertop materials can add unexpected thousands to project budgets.

Kelco Cabinets specializes in custom cabinetry and kitchen remodeling services throughout southwest Missouri, including Springfield, Ozark, Republic, Nixa, and surrounding communities. The company focuses on providing detailed cost breakdowns and design consultations to help homeowners understand the investment required for their specific renovation goals.
